

Welcome to The Hague.

We made a selection of events to elevate your experience. For a comprehensive list, we invite you to explore our website at denhaag.com. We believe in blending business with pleasure, so get ready to mix work and play in our dynamic city!

Museums

◆ Perpetuum Mobile

During the Escher year, the Graphic Workshop is organising a project on the theme of infinity and Escher in the form of an exhibition, workshops and master classes, demonstrating how contemporary makers and the workshop relate to Escher's work.

◆ Mondrian & De Stijl

Mondrian's unique collection of paintings is one of the highlights of the Kunstmuseum Den Haag. His final, and perhaps most popular work is here: Victory Boogie Woogie. Mondrian was associated with the influential De Stijl Group, and the Kunstmuseum Den Haag has a permanent exhibition on this important Dutch contribution to modern art.

◆ Who's that Girl?: What did the Girl look like in 1665?

What did the Girl with a Pearl Earring look like when Vermeer applied his last brushstroke to the canvas and removed the - now world-famous painting - from the easel? Are we still looking at the same painting as he once intended? And what painting techniques would he have used? In the free presentation Who's that Girl? the Mauritshuis shares the most important research results of what the Girl must have looked like around 1665. The presentation in the foyer of the museum also shows a 3D print of the Girl, which you can view and touch. Thanks to very advanced research techniques, we have come a lot closer to Vermeer.

◆ José James

José James has also been called the jazz artist for the hip-hop generation. He has showcased his rich and graceful baritone voice through a series of unpredictable projects that have also blurred the lines between traditional and contemporary jazz, soul, funk, house and rock, among other genres. After two successful No Beginning No End albums, a tribute to Bill Withers followed by an ode to Erykah Badu, James returns with a show of his own.

Music

◆ Carillon concerts in the Nutstuin

The carillon in the tower of the Big Church is played three times a week. Every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, city carillonneur Gijbert Kok plays the carillon of the church tower between noon and 1 pm. You can listen to a programme with a wide range of musical styles. The performances can be heard in the Nutstuin (entrance to Jan Hendrikstraat) or around the tower.

◆ Club Classique: The Memento Collective - Feast in the Field

The Memento Collective is a newly founded collective for experimental early music. Their main mission is to make early music accessible to all by experimenting with space, instrumentation and arrangements. In this concert, they take pieces from the French court (by composers such as Montéclair and Hotteterre) and combine them with the groovy and passionate music of Monteverdi, via Norwegian traditional melodies to fuse it all together.

◆ Residentie Orkest - Tsjajkovski & Prokofjev

The passion splashes out during this grand and compelling evening. Leave that to the composers Tchaikovsky and Prokofiev. Grand and compelling, dizzyingly exuberant, triumphant, glowing, warm-blooded. All these apply to both Tchaikovsky's iconic Violin Concerto and the vast sound world of Prokofiev's Fifth Symphony. It will therefore be a more than passionate evening. Bomsori Kim, one of today's most captivating violinists, and one of our favourite guest conductors Michal Nesterowicz are fanning the flames.

Authentic The Hague

◆ The Hague Market

The Hague Market is one of the largest multicultural markets in Europe. Antique, exotic, modern, cheap, unique: here the merchandise reflects the multicultural population of the city of The Hague. Stroll through the food section where Dutch cauliflower sits gingerly next to fresh ketoembar, baklava, sharonfruit, fresh fish or long beans. Marvel at the extensive flower market and feast your eyes on the clothes and shoes section.
